Game against the Enthroners - Strategy, details and more

How was the Off-Season for you?

Like every off season we are looking for ways to get better, and I think we took big steps in improving many aspect of our franchise, roster, and experience for our players and fans. I enjoy the off seasons and the preparation, but my roles change more into a GM with the recruiting and franchise activities.

What was the biggest challenge of the off-season?

The biggest challenge is meeting with every single player post season. After a long season guys need a break and time off, but I make sure to meet with everyone individually from the coaches to players and our support staff.

What are your “keys to the game”?

Play the game as it is supposed to be played. Play Hard and Play Smart. We play three units (Offense, Defense, and Special Teams) as one, and we all understand that we will have each others back.

What are your goals for this season?

1-0, simple approach. Each game is enough of a challenge and the focus needs to be to win every game that we enter. For a bigger view we want to win our conference and earn one of those top seeds for the bye week, and of course get to Schalke and win another Championship, but it starts week 1.

What is your biggest strength as a team?

Culture and family. We have an environment here that is special and inclusive. Our veteran home grown players create a special atmosphere that allows new players to feel at home so they can perform and play for the Vikings next to them.

What are your expectations for your first game?

To get to know where we are as a team for the coming season. Obviously we would like to play that perfect game, but we know that is not going to happen. So we understand there will be mistakes and I want to see how we react as coaches, players and as a team.

You have been with the team last season as well. What did you change or improve?

The Number 1 change is our offensive coordinator/QB. We will get to see one of the most decorated Austrian Football coaches, Max Sommer, in the ELF. It has been a pleasure to watch Ben Holmes and Coach Sommer put this offense together and interact as a tandem. We made very little changes with our roster, but the additions we made are ones that should have a big impact on at team that was 12-0 last season. Goal is that those changes will make difference.

What do you think will be the biggest challenge when facing the Enthroners?

First games are always a big challenge. Last year we had a bye in week 1. We don't have film from the Enthrones to really get to know our opponent, its players, and schemes. So going it is more about running our systems well and executing.
